Youth Volleyball Lesson Highlights

Program Philosophy
The goal of the Stratman Sports' developmental volleyball program is to teach young volleyball players the rules, skills, and strategies of the game. Our coaching staff and program directors want to train athletes to be successful in any program they may enter. This involves a huge emphasis on skill development and teamwork. We want to develop strong well-rounded players of the game who are confident in their skills and can continue to play the sport throughout their lives.

Coaching Staff
Stratman Sports' coaches are current USAV or collegiate volleyball players, coaches, and/or referees. They are all seasoned players of the game and have a true passion for both playing and coaching of the sport. Our coaches have a wide array of teaching techniques and drills that they will use in order to develop the player's individual skills and teamwork.

Skill Development
Every player who enters the Stratman Sports' developmental volleyball program will be coached to perform the proper skills of the game. Passing, setting, serving, hitting, and digging are all key parts of the game. Our goal is to make sure that our players are performing these skills in the correct way. Coaches will spend a majority of practice time focusing in on these skills in order to make the individual player successful.
